

Chapter 25

Interest

A woman who is busy chasing her ideal life has no time for other things; she is too lazy to chase other interests. She has her agenda and follows her timeline. Nobody can tell her what to do, nor when to do it.

She can be weird, in many ways, to many people who may follow the conventional wisdom. Equipped with intelligence, this woman can develop many skills, and she can make great things happen, as a result.

Such a woman may have time, but she does not have other interests outside of her life purpose although it is yet to be defined. Unlike many who may be tempted to get involved in many things (which are thought to be interesting), this woman couldn't care less about these so-called interesting things, if they are not in her agenda. The world has too many interesting things that are useless, and she is not going to get herself trapped in those meaningless pursuits.